Details

The seminar aims at providing for professional engineers who may be dealing with healthcare engineering projects with knowledge regarding infection control practices to be observed from the views of expert microbiologist.

It is of great benefits for engineers to learn beyond engineering on some basics of hospital infection control so as to enable them to have better planning and design for hospitals.

The speaker

Dr. Yung Wai Hung, Raymond

MBBS (HK), MRCPATH, FHKC (Path), FRCPath, FHKAM (Clinical Microbiology & Infection), MPH (CUHK), Dip Infect D (HK)

Dr Yung is a registered medical doctor specializing in microbiology. As a professional microbiologist, he was formerly the Head of Infection Control Branch Centre for Health Protection as well as the Consultant-in-charge of the Infectious Disease Control Training Centre, Hospital Authority. Dr. Yung is currently the vice superintendent of the Hong Kong Sanatorium Hospital.

The speaker, Dr Raymond Yung, will present Hospital Infection Control from the perspective of professional microbiologist.
